

Kia kaha is “be strong” and the equivalent of letting someone know you are thinking of them, that your thoughts are with them. It is a show of support in tough times. Te Reo Māori, one of New Zealand’s official languages.

We are all one family. Love to all peoples in New Zealand.

Kia kaha is “be strong” and the equivalent of letting someone know you are thinking of them, that your thoughts are with them. It is a show of support in tough times. Te Reo Māori, one of New Zealand’s official languages.

We are all one family. Love to all peoples in New Zealand.

